Post-Tenure Review Committee Annual Report
March 22, 2018

2017-18 Committee Members:

Dinesh Sarvate (Chair) - Mathematics
Lei Jin - International and Intercultural Studies (S)
Mark Landis - Theater and Dance
Clarence Spicer - Psychology
Elena Strauman - Communication

It is my great pleasure to report that the Post Tenure Review Committee completed their task of evaluating thirteen superior rating applications and every one of the applicants received a positive recommendation from the Committee. In fact, a common reaction to the packets was increased appreciation and respect for the faculty we have at the College of Charleston. As a group, these 13 individuals together have many publications and book chapters in refereed journals, several books, mentored many undergraduate independent studies as well as supervised undergraduate and graduate research, they are on the editorial boards of reputed journals, invited speakers, and renowned experts in their respective fields. Many of them are COFC award recipients (Teacher-Scholar, Research, Service and Teaching) but have also received between them millions of dollars of outside grants and awards.

I never thought possible, but I enjoyed the committee work. Only reason, of course, is that our committee was honored to evaluate a group of extraordinary, truly exemplary, and worthy “senior leaders” colleagues from the College. It was a joy to complete the task in a short amount of time.

I wish to thank my committee members: professors Mark Landis, Clarence Spicer, Lei Jin, Renee McCauley (alternate) and the committee Secretary Elene Strauman for efficient, effective and equal partnership.

Sincerely,

Dinesh Sarvate, Chair
on behalf of the Post-Tenure Review Committee
