2021-2022 Committee Activities
The committee was directed by Provost Austin in August 2021 to conduct a survey about continuing education at the College of Charleston. The survey was a way to inventory continuing education offerings and to see what the future of continuing education at the College would be. In fall 2021, the committee met to develop the survey instrument, which was distributed to the campus community in early spring 2022. Once the data collection period concluded, the committee analyzed the survey results and worked to write a report, which will be sent to the Provost and then to the faculty senate in the summer/fall 2022.

In addition to developing the survey, the committee held meetings with campus stakeholders including the Graduate School, the Registrar, University Marketing and Communication, the School of Business, and the Lowcountry Graduate Center to see what role each department/unit has with continuing education. The information gathered from these meetings was denoted in the survey report.

The committee plans to meet with the Provost to discuss the survey results and the future work of the committee will depend on the College administration response to the survey as it outlines three directions for continuing education.

External from the survey one of the future objectives of the committee is to improve and update the information online about continuing education offerings that currently exists.
